Lava on Haimaey, the Westman Islands, over parts of the town buried in a 1973 volcanic eruption
Skálholt, the first episcopal see of Iceland and the center of medieval Iceland intellectual life
At Thingvellir in Snaefellsnes, south of the Nesvogur inlet, at the site of an ancient Icelandic regional assembly
Godafoss, waterfall of the gods, in north-central Iceland
Sulfuric steam shooting from the ground at Smajfall
Vatnajökull glacier in southeast Iceland
At Bergpórshvoll farm, southern Iceland, in front of the former home of Njál, one of the heroes of Njál’s Saga, who was burned alive there by his enemies.
Akureyri, northern Iceland, our home during the Fulbright Fellowship
Stephanie Weiner in Akureyri town center
Fish drying on a laundry line, a common sight in Akureyri
Late November, 10 am, Akureyri